

To whom it may concern,

Hello, my name is Cyrus Verkest, and I am one of Ms. Waite's English students at L'Ance Creuse High School. Ms. Waite has been with the class since the beginning of the school year and when second semester hit, she became our teacher. During this time Ms. Waite has shown exceptional skills as an instructor and as someone who cares about her students. I can honestly say it has been a joy to have her teach me.

Ms. Waite does her best to make sure that everyone understands the lesson; she has several group discussions on our thoughts about what we're learning. She never snaps at the students, but does a good job at taking control of the class. Everything she says feels like she really means it, it is clear that she is actually interested in what we are learning about. She is good with giving us homework and always goes over it with us to make sure we will have all the right answers, because of this, we always have something to study when a test comes up. These traits and skills have been a very valuable asset to my education, and have helped my grades significantly.

As stated earlier, one of Ms Waite's best traits is how she talks with us. The way she talks about a story really makes us think about what we are reading. This makes us happy to add our thoughts on what we are learning, and has made roughly an hour of lecturing interesting. When she is speaking, her voice is clear and loud enough to hear, but not too loud. These qualities are very important when teaching, teenagers have shorter attention spans, and if you want to be noticed, you will have to learn to capture their interest. Luckily; Ms. Waite is great at this, and never disappoints.

Overall, I strongly recommend Ms. Waite for a job. She is a great teacher who knows how to communicate, how to teach, and overall how to have fun with students. Kids/teens would be happy to have her, just as the rest of the students and I have. I urge you to consider her for use in the future.

Yours faithfully,

Cyrus Verkest
